

OUTCOME OF SCHOOL ELECTION ISSUES IN DOUBT

AMBOY YOUTH
MET TRAGIC END FRIDAYGlenn Vaughan Asphyxiated While Alone
at His Home

Glenn P. Vaughan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Vaughan of Amboy, and one of the most talented and popular men who grew to manhood in that city, met a peculiarly tragic death while alone in his home in Glenn Ellyn, a Chicago suburb, some time Friday night—his dead body not being found until late Saturday afternoon when his bride of three months returned from a visit which had called her out of town the day before.

A coroner's inquest held at Glenn Ellyn Saturday evening, found that the popular young man, who was cashier of the Glenn Ellyn State Bank—to which institution he was sent by the Continental Exchange Bank of Chicago with the highest of recommendations—met his death accidentally, and the evidence disclosed the following:

Coffee Put Out Gas.

Mr. Vaughan had not been feeling well while at his work in the bank Friday and he went directly home after banking hours, where it was evident he had thrown himself on the bed for a brief rest. Later, it was apparent he had lighted the gas under the coffee with the intention of getting his own supper—Mrs. Vaughan having been called away for a couple of days. He then sat down beside the kitchen table and rested his head on his crossed arms, in which position he evidently fell asleep. While he slept the coffee boiled over and extinguished the flame, the gas continuing to flow into the room and asphyxiating him.

His body was found on the floor beside the chair by the grief-stricken wife of three months when she returned home Saturday afternoon.

Funeral Held Today.

The body was taken to Amboy Sunday and funeral services were held this afternoon at the home of his parents, Rev. Brink of the Congregational church officiating, and with burial in Prairie Rest cemetery, to which place it was escorted by a squad of American Legion comrades, who sounded their farewell "Taps," at the conclusion of the services.

Native of Amboy.

Glenn P. Vaughan was born in Amboy Sept. 29, 1890, being aged 36 years, 8 months and 18 days at his untimely death. His education was received in Amboy, where he grew to young manhood, and from which city he enlisted in the service of his country during the late war.

Three months ago he was married to Miss Myrtle Plum of Aurora, and they moved to Glenn Ellyn about two months ago to establish the home which was so ruthlessly broken up by the tragedy. He is survived by his widow; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred N. Vaughan of Amboy; a sister, Mrs. Jeanette Merrifield of Kansas City, Kas.; and a brother, Fred N. Vaughan, Jr., of Amboy, to whom the sympathy of a great host of friends of the deceased goes out.

Glenn Vaughan was a sterling man in every sense of the word, thorough, painstakingly honest, cheerful and likeable, and the esteem in which he was held by his associates.

"LONE EAGLE" IS ASKED TO VISIT
DEKALB JUNE 25Invitation Carried to Him by Airplane
this Morning

DeKalb, Ill., June 20.—(AP)—"The Spirit of DeKalb," a four passenger airplane, today carried this city's invitation to the master of the "Spirit of St. Louis" at St. Louis to visit DeKalb on June 25.

Col. Lindbergh will be asked to attend the 12th district American Legion convention here Saturday.

MAY VISIT CHICAGO

Chicago, June 20.—(AP)—Col. Lindbergh may attend the military tournament here at the end of the week, Col. T. A. Siquele, director of the show, disclosed today.

Harry Hall Knight, in charge of Lindbergh's arrangements in St. Louis, expressed the hope that the flying Colonel, could be here for the show which opens Friday, and that he would make an announcement would be made, probably Wednesday, of his itinerary.

The Union League Club hopes to be Lindbergh's host if he comes to Chicago.

St. Louis, June 20.—(AP)—Sheltered from the acclaim of roaring crowds, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh rested today after one month of unparalleled praise following his trans-Atlantic flight. The conqueror of the north Atlantic air is tired. Last night when 12,000 of his fellow citizens crowded the municipal theater, he sat through the first act and then left but not before he had been coaxed to appear on the stage for a moment.

Today was the first when he was able to step down from the spotlight of undivided public attention into that of "Slim" Lindbergh, flier and son of a beloved mother, Mrs. Evangeline E. Lindbergh.

The last whirl of greeting ended yesterday when more than 100,000 persons gathered at Forest Park to see Col. Lindbergh fly the "Spirit of St. Louis" and later to hear him speak of the future of aviation.

Mrs. Lindbergh planned to return to Detroit today, while Col. Lindbergh will make his home at that of Harry F. Knight for a few days until his plans are more definite. He has made no announcements concerning his future.

Alton, Ill., June 20.—(AP)—Paul Buddie, aged 23, was killed by two bandits who were trying to rob him as he was on the way to Alton Sunday night. With him was Miss Sadie Findley, daughter of Assistant Postmaster Samuel A. Findley of Alton.

In a struggle between the bandits and Buddie, during which Buddie fired four shots, Buddie was killed.

Previous to that, Elmer Faustick, son of former Mayor J. C. Faustick of Alton was helped up by the same bandits and robbed of $10.

EXTENSION NAVY

CLASS PROPOSED"Big Three" Conference,
Sponsored by U. S.,
Convenes Today

BULLETIN.

Geneva, June 20.—(AP)—Reduction in the size of future battleships from the present 35,000 tons limit to under 30,000 tons was recommended by W. C. Bridgeman, first Lord of the Admiralty, Great Britain's representative at the naval conference, who this opened matters which had been settled by the Washington conference.

Mr. Bridgeman advocated limiting the size of individual submarines to 1,800 tons. He also suggested making the life of battleships 25 instead of 20 years and that the three powers waive their rights under the replacement tables agreed upon at Washington.

He further proposed limiting the size of all future cruisers to 7,500 tons and their armament to six-inch guns this limitation to be effective after an agreement was reached on the number of 10,000 ton cruisers the powers will build.

He recommended limitation of the aircraft carriers to 25,000 tons instead of 27,000, reduction of guns on aircraft carriers from 8 inches to 6 and reduction of guns on battle ships from 16 inches to 13.5.

Geneva, June 20.—(AP)—Extension of the 5-5-3 principle of naval strength to cruisers, destroyers and submarines of the United States, Great Britain and Japan was proposed today by the three power naval limitation conference by the American delegation.

Opening the conference called by President Coolidge, Ambassador Gibson, chairman, proposed that cruisers be limited to tonnage of 250,000 or 300,000 tons for the United States and Great Britain and to 150,000 or 180,000 tons for Japan.

Destroyer tonnage would be restricted to 200,000 or 250,000 tons for the two larger powers and to 120,000 to 150,000 for Japan. Maximum tonnage for American and British submarines would be 80,000 to 90,000 tons with 26,000 to 54,000 tons fixed for Japan.

Thanks From Coolidge

Gibson presented his proposal after a brief address in which he presented an expression of gratitude to the powers.

Byrd May Take Air
Tomorrow Evening

New York, June 20.—(AP)—Dusk tomorrow may see Commander R. E. Byrd's monoplane America start on its scientific flight to Paris.

Unlike his predecessors, Lindbergh and Chamberlin, who left shortly after dawn, Commander Byrd is considering a departure with his three flying companions at about 6 p. m. He believes his plane thereby would reach New Foundland with the dawn and Paris before sunset.

Adverse weather conditions over the Atlantic indicated a hop-off would not be wise before tomorrow, Byrd said last night.

Byrd went to Boston last night and received an honorary degree of Master of Science from Tufts College.

Slot Machine Cash Is Property of Owners

Springfield, Ill., June 20.—(AP)—Money found in confiscated slot machines belongs to the owner of the machine, Attorney General Carlstrom ruled in an opinion here today.

"Property is of two kinds," Carlstrom said in discussing the question, "one, an obnoxious class, which the law condemns, and the other, lawful and not harmful in itself."

"The slot machine is classified as an obnoxious property and may be destroyed. However, money is not of the obnoxious class to be condemned and under the law no authority is granted for the destruction of money contained in the machine."

"Under the definition of gambling, the money passes to the owner of the slot machine or the person in whose custody the machine is when the money was deposited therein, and not to the person who deposited it."

REYNOLDS WIRE CO. PLANNING
EXTENSIVE IMPROVEMENTS TO GREATLY INCREASE PRODUCTION$50,000 to be Expended on Local Plants
During Year

Officers of the Reynolds Wire company today made public announcement of a building program, totalling more than $50,000 to be divided between their east and west plants, the work to be started at once and to be completed this summer. The program calls for the construction of an all steel building at the east end drawing plant, 45x47 feet, which is to be used for the housing of a new process for the annealing of wire. The structure will be so constructed that it can eventually be increased to a length of 150 feet. This improvement when completed will represent an expenditure of upwards of $20,000.

Contractor Mark D. Smith is to start work at once preparing the foundation for the modern fire proof steel building.

The company plans to equip the east end plant with fuel oil furnaces, doing away with the coal heated units now in use and thus eliminating a smoke complaint of years standing. Should the oil process prove successful, all of the coal heated annealers will also be eliminated, it was stated.

Installing Cafeteria.

The offices in the east end plant are being relocated on the second floor of the present building with much better accommodations. A factory cafeteria will be installed in the center of the building for the accommodation of the employees. The company installed a small cafeteria six months ago as a trial measure and the success of the venture has prompted the installation of a permanent department. A cafeteria will also be installed in the west end weaving plant during the summer.

At the west end plant, improvements approximating $30,000 are now under way, the work to be completed this summer. When completed, it is expected that the output of the factory will be increased 30 per cent in the manufacture of wire cloth and other wire products.

To Increase Production.

The general office space at the west end plant is now being enlarged and decorated. New electric machinery will be installed as rapidly as possible. After July 1, an intensive production schedule is to be followed out at both plants, whereby the output will be increased 25 per cent over last year and in which it is expected to establish a record in the company's history.

L. G. McDonald of Chicago will arrive in Dixon July 1 to take up his duties as general sales manager for the Reynolds company. Mr. McDonald was former western sales manager for the American Wire Fabric corporation, a subsidiary of the Wickwire-Spencer company.

Joergens had been missing over a week. It is presumed he ran off the high embankment into the river.

Carlinville Blackmail

Gang Believed Broken

Carlinville, Ill., June 20.—(AP)—A blackhand ring was believed broken up here today with action of States Attorney L. M. Harlan, in filing charges of extortion against 3 men arrested Thursday and Friday, Tommy Gendro, 30, Bend resort proprietor and alleged leader of the ring, has refused food since he was imprisoned.

A reputed confession by Pete Baslavach, 18, Bend, arrested Thursday night, named Gendro as leader of the Bend ring, and member of a larger ring at Cleveland, Ohio. Besides these two, Clifford Allen, 29, of Bend was taken into custody.

Baslavach told of an attempt to extort $500 from Joe Zerbolio, Bend garage man last October. A letter mailed from St. Louis by Allen directed him, on threat of death to leave the money at cemetery gate. Nothing came of the threat, as Zerbolio refused to deposit the money and reported the letter to the authorities.

Harry Beaver, 50,
Died This Morning
Result of MishapSkull Fractured When
He Fell from Hay
Mow in Nelson

Harry Beaver, aged about 50, who is well known throughout this part of the county, died at the Dixon public hospital shortly before noon today, as the result of injuries he received when he was thrown from the hay-mow at the Moeller farm in Nelson township, where he was assisting in putting away the hay crop. The accident happened at about 8:30 o'clock today, and the unfortunate man succumbed to his injury—a fracture of the skull at the base of the brain—shortly after his arrival at the hospital.

Beaver was assisting Clifford Clymer in storing away the hay, and was at work in the loft, mowing it back when he met his fatal accident. It is believed that the rope caught him, after the fork had been released, throwing him from the door of the loft to the ground, a distance of about eighteen feet. He was unconscious when picked up and remained in that condition until his death.

Coroner F. M. Banker will conduct an inquest at the Preston undertaking rooms, where the body was taken after death, at 8:30 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Coolidge Tries
Hand at Fishing

Rapid City, S. D., June 20.—(AP)—A favorable report on conditions in the northwest was brought to President Coolidge today by Herbert Halenberger, examiner for the federal reserve bank at Minneapolis.

Mr. Coolidge let his reel and rod remain in a closet and motored to the executive offices in Rapid City to spend a few hours at his desk. Shortly after he left the summer White House, rain began to fall, but the traveling 32 miles to his office over good gravel roads had no trouble.

Clad in a miniature cowboy hat, boots, sport skirt and slicker, Mrs. Coolidge set out for a trout stream to try her luck with a fishing pole. She slipped away in a steady almost unnoticed, driving to the trout lake, in a limousine accompanied by James Haley, secret service man.

James Lambrecht of Chicago, driver of the Interstate Trucking company's freight truck which was wrecked Friday evening on Galena avenue north of First street, had another thrilling experience after arriving home, according to the following clipping from the Chicago Herald-Examiner:

Between a bath and a bed there is little difference to James Lambrecht, 3124 Logan Boulevard—when he is really sleepy.

Yesterday after driving a truck all day, he filled a tub with nice warm water and went to sleep in it. After a while the tub overflowed, and still

BOND ISSUE,
SITE MAY BE
UNDECIDEDProposition for Building
New High School
Carried Easily

Voters of Dixon displayed keen interest in Saturday's election which was held to decide whether or not the city should have a new high school. The result of the vote shows that a new high school was favored by a strong majority. In the three precincts a total of 2,174 votes were cast which is considered a very large vote in contrast with former voting. The first precinct on the north side voted 5 to 1 in favor of the high school. The second precinct at the south side high school went better than 3 to 1 in favor of the movement, while the third precinct in the west end of the city at the Finkler store went on record as being opposed to all of the propositions.

A few hours before the polls opened, a movement presented itself to have the old college site in the west end of the city considered for one of the locations and workers were present at the polls for this proposition.

Some Legal Questions

The north side athletic field received by far the largest number of votes for location. Official figures were not obtainable today, the board of education having not met to canvass the vote. It was expected that this would be done tomorrow, at which time it will be determined if the vote for the north side location is legally sufficient.

In all of the voting precincts, many failed to vote for the bond issue but were favorable to the high school. Whether the total vote cast for the bond issue is legally sufficient will be decided when the board of education meets to canvass the vote. The proposition of selecting the site will also be decided at this time.

Sterling Woman Injured in Accident in Dixon

Mrs. G. M. Turnroth of Sterling sustained a scalp injury last night about 12 o'clock in a collision at the traffic light at Galena avenue and Lincoln Way. A car driven by J. F. Mrs. Turnroth was carried into the George Prescott home where she received medical attention and was able to return to her home. Both cars were slightly damaged.

A Ford coupe driven by Charles Donovan of this city was struck and almost turned over west of Hennepin avenue on First street about 6 o'clock last evening. Keith Swartz, driving a new Nash coupe, struck Donovan's car. Both machines were slightly damaged but none of the occupants was injured.

OLD MASTERS

"GOD IS AT THE ANVIL"

The poets have often shown us how God is in Nature. Tennyson, in particular, in verses like "Flower by the Crannied Wall," was fond of proving that the Deity is not a distant Ruler of our destinies, but is to be found close at hand. If we have but the eyes to see Him, Mr. Saret, a much more modern poet, continues to prove this. His brief verses reveal rich imagination and power. They glow with fervor and flash with meaning, and it is hard not to believe that he is indubitably right:

God is at the anvil, beating on the sun;

Where the molten metal spills,
At His forge among the hills
He has hammered out the glory of a day that's done.

God is at the anvil, welding golden bars;

In the scarlet-screaming flame
He is fashioning a frame
For the shimmering silver beauty of the evening stars.

Annual Reunion of Miller Families

The annual reunion of the Miller families, relatives and friends was held at Lowell Park on Sunday, June 19, 1927. A feature of the occasion was the noonday picnic dinner and the beautiful and delicious repast was greatly enjoyed by all, as well as the beautiful day spent in the beautiful park. Forty-four persons were present as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Glen Miller, Misses Zula and Iva Jean Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Roy W. Gooch, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Tuttle, Mrs. Rosella Gooch, Amboy; Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Miller, E. O. Miller, Miss Elwynna Miller, Miss Gladys Herrick, Dixon; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Miller and son Roger Eugene, Floyd Miller, Miss Bina Miller, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Fleming, Mrs. Nellie Moffatt, Paw Paw; Wilbur Forsyth, Miss Margaret Forsyth, Charles City, Ia.; Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Miller, Byron; Miss Florence Gooch, Leonard Eckert, Geneseo; Mr. and Mrs. Steve Jordan, Lyons, Ia.; Mrs. Annie Smith, Mrs. Mary Barber, Marble Rock, Ia.; Miss Florence Wilson, Rockford, Iowa; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Barrett, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Fleming and daughters, Wanda, Doris and Joyce, Shabbona, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Holland, DeKalb.

RATHER SEVERE FOR ATLANTA

A resident of Atlanta took out an accident insurance policy and then fell ill of, pleurisy. He brought action against the insurance company and lost in the municipal court, which decided that pleurisy was not an accident but a visitation of God. The superior court reversed the finding on the ground that visitation of God to a resident of Atlanta was an accident.

MISS DECKER SPENT VACATION IN EAST

Miss Edna J. Decker has returned from New York where she spent her vacation visiting relatives. While in the east, she attended the convention of the National Electric Light Association held at Atlantic City, N. J., June 6-10, and appeared on the program of the General Women's Committee.

Menus for the Family

BREAKFAST—Stewed prunes, oatmeal, cream, ham omelet, crisp toast, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON—Cold sliced cottage ham, potato salad, rye bread, fruit jelly with whipped cream, milk, tea.
DINNER—Broiled lamb chops, baked potatoes, creamed spinach, head lettuce with Roquefort cheese dressing, cherry pudding, milk, coffee.

The potato salad suggested in the luncheon menu gains distinction by the addition of sardines. The use of beets or pimientos in garnishing adds an interesting touch of color to an otherwise rather pale dish.

Potato Salad

Two cups sliced cooked potatoes, 4 tablespoons broken sardines, 3-4 cup diced celery, 1 teaspoon minced parsley, 3 drops onion juice, 2 hard cooked eggs, 2-4 cup mayonnaise, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1-2 teaspoon salt.
Sprinkle potatoes with salt, parsley and onion juice. Cover and let stand on ice for one hour. Sprinkle sardines with lemon juice, cover and let stand on ice one hour. Combine potatoes, sardines, celery and eggs cut in dice. Add mayonnaise and mix lightly with a wooden fork. Serve on crisp lettuce and garnish with snips or strips of pickled beets. ## Regular Meeting W. C. T. U. Friday

The regular monthly meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Christian church. It was Flower Mission day meeting with Mrs. Rhoda Fister, superintendent, presiding during the program. The business meeting was held first, with the president, Mrs. Maud Hobbs, presiding.

The meeting opened by all singing "When Love Shines In." Mrs. Alice Missman led in prayer.

Mrs. Belle Morris read the secretary's report in the absence of the secretary, Miss Callie B. Morgan.

The treasurer's report was given by Miss Adele Dewey.

A report on the tent, it having been sold for $10.

Several letters were read by the president, Mrs. Maud Hobbs, and acted upon.

A motion to help the McFarlane home at Rockford in September, carried and Mesdames Missman and Fry were appointed a committee.

It was voted to send $10 to the flood sufferers. A committee was voted to be appointed to look after a tent for use during the coming Bible conference.

Mrs. Mary Strook read letters from Ella Boole and Epha M. Marshall. The collection was taken.

Mrs. Rhoda Fister then had charge of the following program:

Mrs. Alice Missman read Psalm 116 and all repeated the Lord's prayer.

Solo, "The Mission of a Rose," by Mrs. Bertha Lorick.

Mrs. M. Richardson gave a very pleasing address on Flower Mission day, its meaning, benefits, etc. "To me God's creative work has been most wonderful in its benefits and enjoyments and good, to all. Henry Ward Beecher said flowers were the sweetest things God ever made without a soul, and have brought many persons to feel their need of Christ in their lives. We are too careless and thoughtless in acknowledging the creator of beautiful flowers.

Flowers are God's sweetest message to the world and uplift to humanity."

The members are always helped and benefited by Mrs. Richardson's talks, and presence with them.

Ten bouquets were brought and taken to patients at the hospital. The meeting closed by all repeating the mizpah.

LIFE'S NICETIES HINTS ON ETIQUETTE

1. If walking with a friend who stops to speak to an acquaintance, should a woman stop? It is introduced or just saunter on?
2. In a grand march, on which side of her partner does a woman walk?
3. If a man accidentally meets a girl lunching at the same table, should he offer to pay her check?

The Answers

1. Stop, unless in a terrific hurry.
2. Right.
3. No, why should he?

BEHOLD THE MODERN ARCHITECT!

I talked with a great architect—one of the world's greatest indeed, who has to his credit probably more beautiful buildings than Michael Angelo had pictures.

I stupid, had not heard of him. I said so in very shame. He laughed. "Unless you are particularly interested in architecture you need not apologize," he said. "Few people hear of the architect. We have no signature."

I thought of it later. "We have no signature!" How many people in the world are doing great, grand beautiful work—but have no signature!

An artist can put three crooked lines on a paper and he has a signature. A man may write a joke—a woman a recipe—and they have a signature. A singer has a signature, especially if he sings over the radio. He need not be known. Sculptors have their names in the stone.

But princes in business, magnificent mothers in homes, the patient, striving, achieving world has largely no signature. A doctor, lawyer, or minister has none unless some untoward event takes place to lift him to the heights—either of notoriety or fame.

But to go back to the architect, the maker of beautiful buildings—why shouldn't he have a signature? His works are tangible and lasting. We cannot sign a sentiment but we can sign a fact. A building is a fact and should be signed.

One sees big buildings rising to heaven modestly hidden behind fifty-foot placards giving the names of the contractors, the plumbers, the landscape gardeners, et al. And the master mind stands back and says nothing, his work never to be publicly recognized!

Every house should have on it a bronze tablet in a conspicuous place with the architect's name on it—no matter how modest the house is. And the bronze tablet should be in a place where the world may see.

The WOMAN'S DAY AILENE SUMNER

I wrote a little piece yesterday about the modern single woman who takes her independence, her equal rights with men, and her conceded and accepted right to "live her own life" so much for granted that it is difficult for her to imagine that unmarried women ever had less free lives. I learned at lunch today that I seem to be in error. I lunched with Marie, my knock-em-cold friend who has the unique job of traveling the country over for a national banker's association. Marie talks before clubs of one sort and another on the joys of saving.

STILL DECLASSE

But this little piece was to be about what Marie thinks rather than about the personal wonders of my friend Marie. Because she is kind enough to be interested in "the pieces I write for the papers," I took yesterday's brain child along. Marie read it between gulps of her creamed mushroom soup. Then she commented:

"It's an interesting idea, only your contrast of the single woman then and now is all wet. Where do you get this idea that the modern woman is any more accepted than she was a generation ago? Let me tell you a few things, old dear. I'll begin right off the bat by telling you that the world at large, the male part of it, at least, no more accepts nor honors, nor respects, nor likes our sort of woman than they did in Ellen Dacy's time. (Ellen, you may remember, was heroine of Helen Hull's new book, "Islanders," about which I wrote yesterday).

"Maybe you have to travel to get what I mean which is just why you should know. You gaud about the universe about as much as I do and you must get it."

CAME DAWN

I began to see what Marie was driving at. I did get it. I wondered if her interpretation of what it meant was not the obvious one, only I had never happened to look upon the traveling woman's encountered incivilities as an admission that we are no more accepted today than such independent types would have been in Ellen Dacy's time.

HER TALE

"I was in four different cities last week," Marie went on. "Four different hotels. I stood in line at the first one with the usual mob of just-off-the-trainers. I distinctly heard the clerk give the man just ahead of me a room. When it came my turn he looked me over appraisingly, asked if I had a reservation and when I said 'No,' curtly informed me that they had no rooms left and passed on to the next one. I left the line and listened. He asked the man if he had a reservation, heard 'no' and without hesitating called 'front' and gave him a single. I stepped back and inquired 'How come?' He even had the audacity to tell the truth. 'We take care of men here first; if there's anything left when the line's finished you can have it!'

SASSIED BACK

"That's very kind of you to be so condescending," I said, but I think I'll find a hotel in this city which is modern enough to give women an even break. If your plumbing's as archaic as your ideas, I'll pay no $6 a night here for a room.' I knew he didn't know what 'archaic' meant, but I felt better.

"Two nights later I was in one of the best hotels in this country. I went down to the dining room and found a line waiting. I patiently waited my turn, but when my turn was ignored and several parties which arrived later than I were escorted to tables, my anger began to rise and I said to the head waiter, 'one, please.' He gave me a withering look and said, 'I have no single seats for ladies,' and in the next breath walked a man down to a vacant table for two.

DID HER DUTY

"I could have witted than and there, but I was mad. I resented being forced to leave the hotel for my dinner. I resented being forced to take time and energy to expostulate. But I felt it a duty to all women to expostulate. I hid me to the hotel manager and demanded to know why it was any more difficult to find a seat in the dining room for a woman alone than for a man alone. He hemmed and hawed and said that at a busy time it was necessary to use all tables; that two men could be put at one table, but that a woman might resent a seat at a table with a strange man. I laughed in his face and told him that most professional women met more difficult situations than sitting at a table with a man to whom they had not been introduced.

RIGHTEOUS WRATH

"To put it commonly, old dear," Marie summarized, "impossible as it may sound, men still classify the unescorted woman as a baggage and a trollope. They have heard of business women, doing the work of men, but they don't recognize her for what she is when they see her. She is the same declass creature she would have been 40 years ago."

She's right. I've suffered, too!

INVOICING LINDBERGH.

Now that Captain Lindbergh is back home, it might be worth while to take stock and see what this interesting young man has done.

Winning $25,000 and unlimited fame for himself are but the beginnings of his achievements.

He has proved trans-oceanic commercial flying not far off.

He has inspired prize offers for flights from the Pacific coast to Honolulu and from Dallas, Tex., to Hong Kong.

He has inspired a flight from America to Berlin.

He has started talk of a fifteen-day flight round the world.

He has given immeasurable impetus to the development of commercial flying the whole world over.

He has, in the words of no less a person than Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, turned France toward the United States once more, scattering clouds of distrust and hatred.

He has paved the way for a hospitable reception for the American Legion's tour to France.

It is possible that he has indirectly enabled France to borrow $100,000,000 from private capital in the United States.

The list is perhaps incomplete, but even as it stands it is a fairly imposing array of accomplishments for a modest young man still in his twenties.

All the things listed above are tangible. They have a value that can be reckoned in intrinsic worth.

Over and beyond and above them all, however, stands the one supreme achievement—the intangible fact that he has given the world a new thrill of joy, a new zeal ideal, a new hero.

WE DO MOVE.

There are still on earth and kicking a few old souls who remember the curfew and the day when any young lady who permitted a gentleman friend to keep her company after 10:30 p. m. would have things said about her and get a reputation.

Recently, however, an Evanston, Ill., co-educational institution of higher learning has announced that its young ladies may stay out till 1 a. m. on date nights, which come twice a week. Are we approaching Thomas A. Edison's ideal of a race which sleeps but four hours a night, or are we approaching perdition? Whichever it is, we are certainly moving, and that not slowly.

PROFITING BY RED GRANGER'S BAD PLAY.

Grange. He could play football better than anyone else. A Once upon a time there was a young man by the name of man with much money came along and told this young man named Grange that he could make his fortune by dropping out of college and becoming a professional. He did so. People don't hear so much of Mr. Grange now.

Today, there is another man. This one is named Fidel La Barba. He could clean up $100,000 by staying in the scrapping game in which he now is flyweight champion. Instead of that, he elects to go to college.

The moral of these two stories, anyone can write for himself.

RUMANIA'S ROBIN HOOD.

History has a queer way of repeating itself. Old English ballads and stories are full of the doings of a certain outlaw named Robin Hood, who robbed the rich and gave to the poor. What was probably merely legend in England has become fact in Rumania, where all the police in that troubled kingdom have been mobilized to capture a certain notorious bandit named Terente.

They have scoured the country for him. They have offered a big reward for his head. But they are skeptical of their success, because like his famous English prototype, Terente has always been good to the poor.

There is a wide-spread conviction among the lower classes that he is their champion against the injustice, the corruption and the brutality of Rumanian officialdom. He translates into action the revolt that is seething in their hearts. He strikes where they fear to lift a hand. The result is that they would do anything for him. They will feed him. They will give him a night's lodging. They will guide him to safe hiding places. They will put the police off by false scents. Terente is their hero. Two hundred years from now the common folk will be singing ballads about him.

"LEST WE FORGET."

In our mad glee over the achievements of Lindbergh and Chamberlain, in the relief from stories of misery and suffering, the disaster in the Mississippi valley has been forgotten.

That disaster, however, is not all over. Flood waters have reached their crest, they are subsiding, they are not yet confined within the banks and the levees.

Even as far north as Kentucky, not all the refugees have been able to return to the desolate spots that were once their homes. Those who have returned are finding the damages greater than reckoned.

Now is the time when you find the sap in the water.

THE ANIMATES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

The seal in which wee Scouty sat seemed quite a friendly thing, at that. He wiggled through the water, giving Scouty quite a ride. At first he traveled very slow, perhaps because he seemed to know that Scouty would fall off of him if he quickly he would glide.

Along the water's floor they went and quite a bit of time was spent in sneaking through queer places which were quite a treat to see. "Course Scouty much enjoyed the trip, though now and then he'd slide and slip, for hanging on a seal's back is as hard as it can be.

They came upon a bed of shells, washed into odd piles by the swells and Scouty tried to grab a few. This was a bad mistake. He leaned too far out to one side. "Oh, my, I'm falling off," he cried. Then down he went, into the shells, and heard a number break.

The seal, right quickly turned around and settled closely to the ground. Wee Scouty hopped up to his feet and climbed aboard again. "I surely am a chase mite," thought he. "I'll bet I looked a sight!" But Scouty shouldn't worry 'cause we all fall, now and then.

The seal began to swim once more. He knew a long trip was in store. King Roar had made him promise he'd take Scouty up to land. Some other wondrous sights were seen: queer shining rocks and seaweed green, and Scouty sure enjoyed them and he thought that they were grand.

All of a sudden, up they went, and but a half an hour was spent in heading for the water top, and back to air once more. At last, and almost like a dream, they popped right up out of the stream, and Scouty saw the other Times, waving on the shore.

SAINT and SINNER

Faith Hathaway had not quite realized she was Faith Hathaway and not Faith Lane, the negligible older sister of the famous beauty, Cherry Lane, until the first candidate for the position of general maid in her new home appeared at the door and demanded to see, "Mrs. Hathaway."

Her heart swelled with a sudden, sharp joy as she replied quietly, "I am Mrs. Hathaway."

"Pretty young, ain't you?" the middle-aged woman who had announced herself as Mrs. Kate Lundy, retorted disapprovingly. "If there's anything I hate it's doing for newly-weds. Mushing all over the place, or her always bawling around because he didn't kiss her goodbye like he used to before they were married. How many in the family?" she asked in hasty suspicion, as Cherry's voice raised in carefree song, came from a bedroom.

"Five," Faith answered, her heart sinking to the pit of her stomach. "My father and two sisters, my husband and I. But if you prefer not to work for newly married couples—"

"Hold on, child," Mrs. Lundy commanded, like a mother addressing an impudent child. "You look like a sensible young piece to me. Now let's see the house. New, I take it. All modern conveniences? Got a vacuum cleaner?"

"Yes," Faith smiled. Faith, conducted the candidate willingly on a tour of the house, her naive vanity in her new possessions fed by the evident approval of the strong-minded, strong-bodied servant.

She showed her the kitchen after the dining room had passed muster in Mrs. Lundy's sharp eyes.

"Mind," Mrs. Lundy planted her big red hands on her hips and surveyed the room that was the pride of Faith's heart. "Electric refrigerator? Don't they make the very devil of a noise when they start up? But handy, I'll say that for 'em! Big gas range, too. Built-in ironing board—say, am I expected to do any washing and ironing? That will be extra, and I don't figure to have time for much besides housework and cooking."

"The bulk of the wash will go to the laundry," Faith assured her. "And my sister and I will manage the rest—underwear and things like that. There's a really wonderful little laundry in the basement," she added proudly.

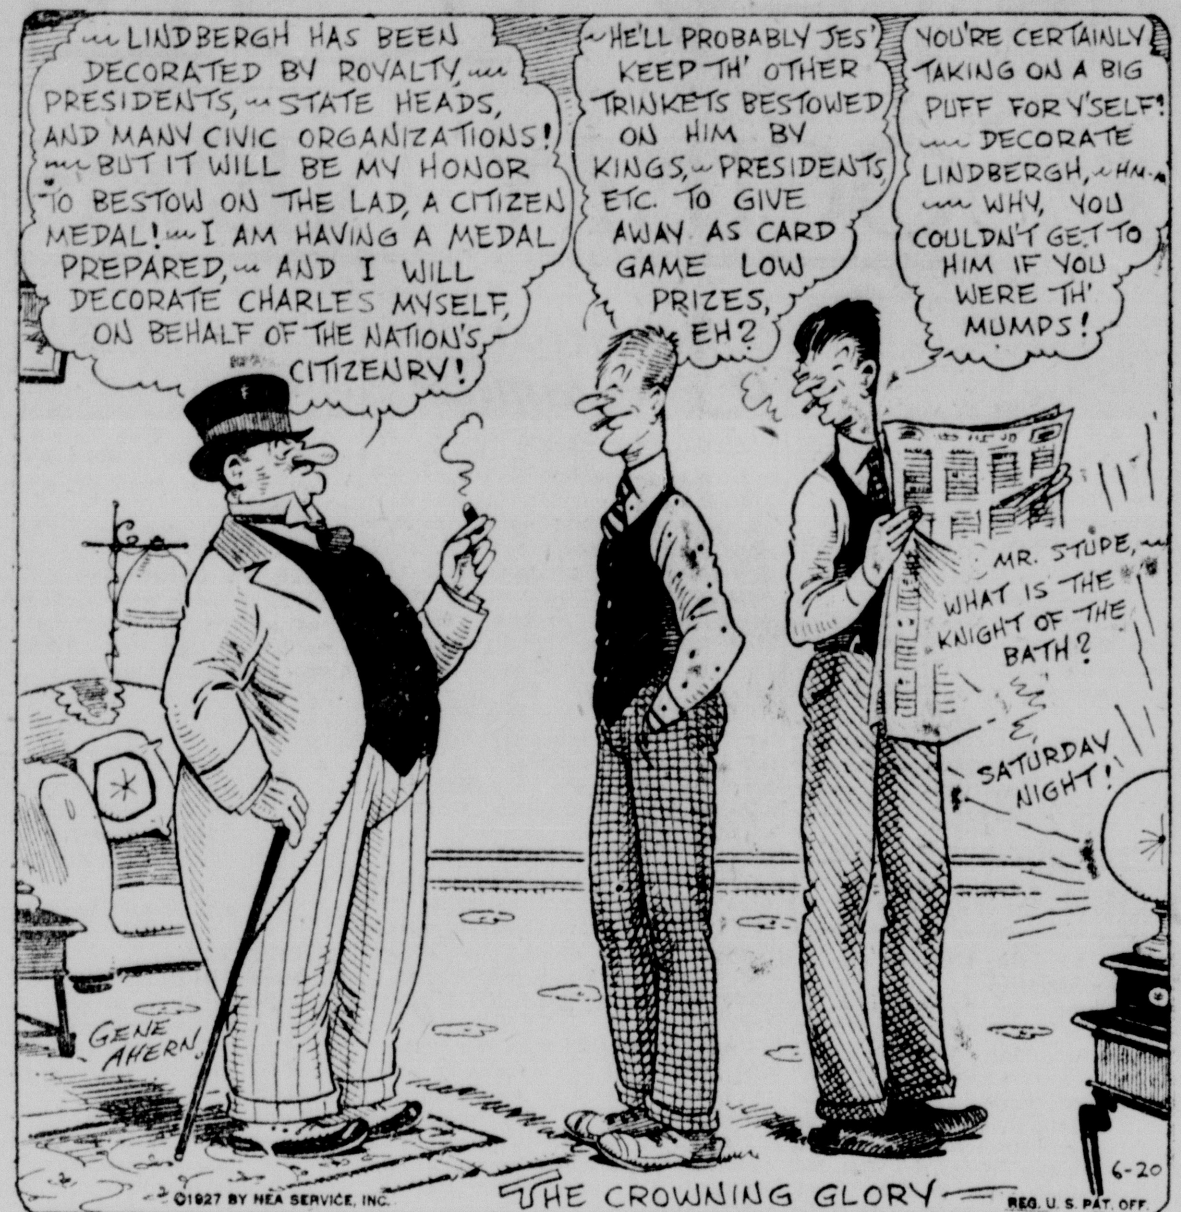

"Who tidied up this kitchen this morning?" Mrs. Lundy demanded, running an inquiring finger over the enameled top of the gas range.

"I did," Faith flushed. "Why?" "As slick a job as I ever seen, that's all. Guess I'll have to step some to keep up with you, Missus Hathaway. Not a speck of dust in your whole house, far as I can see, Thursday afternoon and Sunday afternoon off!" she demanded succinctly.

"Yes," Faith conceded. "That is, Sunday afternoon from two o'clock on. The hours otherwise will be seven-thirty to six-thirty, with your time free from luncheon until time to prepare dinner. Luncheon will be a simple matter, usually for myself and Mrs. Wiley only. My other sister goes to school and will take her lunch. She's only ten, and her name is Joy," she added.

"I hope she lives up to her name," Mrs. Lundy had begun grimly when Cherry poked her bright head through the swinging door.

"Well, land alive! If it ain't the girl that was in all the trouble over poor Mr. Cluny!" Kate ejaculated. "Come in here and let me get a good look at you. I tried to hear some of your trial, but I couldn't get within a mile of the courthouse, hardly."

Cherry's face flamed with sudden color, but Faith noticed that she preened herself a bit as she entered the kitchen. She was again a heroine.

Who Uses Oil?

Who uses oil? Everybody! The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) supplies products of petroleum used—directly or indirectly—by every one of the 30 million people of the Middle West.

The two major products of oil—gasoline and lubricating oil—are essential to motor transportation, to industry and to commerce.

In addition to the major products of petroleum there are hundreds of by-products which fill a great variety of needs and, by eliminating waste, help to make possible the low price of the major products. The man who rides over an asphalt road—the woman who oils her sewing machine—is using a product of petroleum.

The wheels that are busily whirling in factories throughout the land, manufacturing the necessities and luxuries of life, must be lubricated.

Oil plays its part in the manufacture and distribution of practically all the products in use today—the food we eat—the clothes we wear—the houses in which we live.

As a nation we move on oil. Wheels on our railroads—cars—trucks—are lubricated by the products of petroleum.

Engines—in millions of automobiles, trucks and tractors—are fed the products of oil.

In manufacturing petroleum, products for the people of the Middle West, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is helping to unite the nation, socially and industrially.

The passenger miles done last year by automobiles has been estimated at 240 billion.

That means travel. Motorists learning to know their own country. People from one section visiting other sections. An interchange of people in the ten states of the Middle West. Horizons widened—sympathies broadened—the fabric of our national life more closely knit together.

Industrially the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is helping to unite the nation. Gasoline and oil bring the city to the country and the country to the city.

At the end of 1926 there were 4,850,000 farmer-owned automobiles registered. In addition there were the motor trucks which bring the farm close to the markets, benefiting farmer, merchant and general consumer.

Providing petroleum products for the people of the Middle West is a big job made up of countless small ones—each of which must be performed with the same accuracy and whole-hearted effort. The energy and time of 29,000 men and women, united by a common loyalty and enthusiasm, are required to carry on the work of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

Conscious of the greatness of the task, yet mindful of the importance of every detail, this great army of workers is daily putting into action the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) creed of service.

LEGIONNAIRES OF DISTRICT ENJOY POLO CONVENTION

Big Day Saturday was Lot of Ex-Service Men at Meeting

Polo—Legionnaires, overflowing Polo Saturday in their blue and gold over-alls caps, "civies," their canes and their contagious enthusiasm, voted to send the 1928 convention of the 13th district Illinois department American Legion to Morrison.

AMERICANS GIVEN ROYAL WELCOMES IN GERMAN TOWNS

Chamberlin and Levine Were Guests Today of Vienna Folks

BULLETIN

Vienna, June 20—(AP)—President Hainisch of the Austrian Republic today conferred upon Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine the republic's highest order of merit, the "Goldenes Ehrenzeichen Der Republik," in recognition of their trans-Atlantic flight.

Vienna, June 20—(AP)—Having completed a fortnight's stay in Germany after their flight from New York, Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine were guests today of Austria.

"Guten Tag, Wien," "Good Day, Vienna." With these words Chamberlin greeted the Austrians when he and Levine stepped from their plane.

Munich, on their arrival from Munich last night. Despite a pouring rain thousands were gathered at the Aspern Air Field to greet the Americans who were immediately surrounded and carried on the shoulders of admirers. Their wives came as passengers in one of half a dozen escorting planes.

After shaking hands with cabinet ministers and officials, the party was driven around the field through dense crowds, the band meanwhile playing the American anthem.

A path was made for the machine, someone stepped forward and offered the fliers a stein of beer.

It was the second great welcome of the day for when they arrived at Munich from Berlin in the afternoon, all of Bavaria apparently had turned out in their honor.

After a long series of functions in Vienna, the aviators will visit Prague, Budapest, Warsaw, Zurich and Paris. They have made provisional arrangements to sail for home on the Leviathan, July 12.

Before they left Munich Chamberlin and Levine issued a proclamation thanking the German people for the welcome and honors accorded them.

Pope Pays Tribute to Episcopacy in America

Rome—Pope Pius in an allocution at a secret consistory today paid tribute to the Catholic episcopacy of the United States for its aid in making known the true situation of Catholics in Mexico. He expressed his keen sorrow over the tribulations of the Chinese people. The recrudescence of "barbaric" law against religion is due, the Pope believes, to the public and secret circulation of subversive theories of all kinds.

Washington Citizens to Battle on Bootleggers

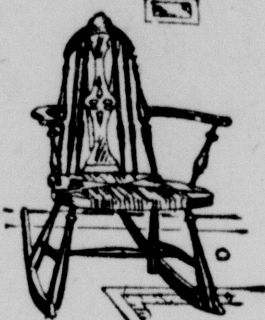

Washington—More than 2,000 Washington citizens have organized a war against bootleggers. Formed under the name of the City Service Association for Law and Order a mass meeting last night launched a movement for the private citizens to secure liquor evidence to be turned over to the authorities.

"IRISH HEARTS," with May McAvoy, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
Sheila Kildare and her father emigrate to America to follow Emmett Murtough, to whom she is betrothed. Neither Kildare nor Murtough hold steady jobs and Sheila works as a waitress. Her only friends are the family of Rory O'Shea, a professional boxer, whose kindness interests her. Murtough joins a band of bootleggers and, influenced by a cabaret girl, reveals a plan to move $150,000 worth of contraband. He enlists with the rivals to betray the hiding place.

"Listen, I understand from what you have learned about you, that you and this little girl are good friends—in fact, you'd both like to get married and get a good start in a business worth while. Well, here's your chance. Do this one job and you've got the money to marry and to settle down in a legitimate business. It's a chance not many fellows get in this game," he added. "How about it?"
"And if you don't want to play that way, we'll turn you up to Clocker within an hour," Murtough did not realize that if they did, it would tip off their own plans. He sat dumbly for several minutes, then threw out his hands and said: "All right. You win and I'll play square with you; but it's the first crooked deal I ever put over."

"You and Emmett Murtough engaged!"

that occupied by Schermer, and Murtough was assigned to that. There was no door leading to the hall and the window was seven stories above the street. Murtough sat himself down to reflections on the gift of eternal silence.

CHAPTER XI

Planning the "Double-Cross"

Sheila had not seen Rory O'Shea since his victory over Campeau at the Garden. She had avoided Mrs. O'Shea, too, because she felt that she might be embarrassed if she visited Rory's mother, and he were to be home when she called. She felt instinctively that Rory admired her even though she had not heard from him directly during his stay at the training camp. Memory of the long automobile ride brought back many pleasant recollections of this becoming young man, but now that she had given her word definitely to Emmett Murtough she felt she must put such thoughts from her.

Rory had called at the Kildare apartment one night but Sheila was not at home and Old Tom did not encourage him to stay until she returned from her work at the restaurant. Rory had settled his affairs with Jack Reagan and had in his wallet a check for $1,750 more than he had expected. It was eight o'clock and he decided to have supper at Nick's. He selected a table, which he thought would be served by Sheila, so that he might chat with her. He lingered over his meal in order to get a word with her now and then, and when Sheila brought her own supper he beckoned to her to lay it at his table.

"I've missed you, Miss Kildare, these two months," he said.
"Ah, ye had no time to think of me, what with all the training ye had to do," she replied with a smile.
"It was thinking of you that helped me to get into shape to win. I thought a lot about you while I was away. I didn't know you had gone to work and that Old Tom had quit Tim. I'm sorry for that."
"The work didn't suit my father," she said in defense of him.
"Work of any kind that is honest ought not to hurt anybody," retorted Rory.
"I didn't say it hurt him."
"Well, it ought to suit him then." Truth to tell, Rory had seen through Old Tom and his mighty pretensions. "It's a shame you have to be doing this."

"Any kind of work that's honest ought to suit anybody," she replied, paraphrasing his own words.
"But not for a girl like you."
"Oh, it's been all right. Nick's not so bad to work for, after ye know yer job."
"I just settled for the fight and it's a right good nest egg I've got left, more than I expected out of it. Reagan is a fair manager all right."
"And will ye be keeping up yer fighting? Yer mother says she'd like to have you quit."
"Oh, mother's been saying that all these years, but she wants me to do what's best. I don't know yet," he went on seriously. "I stood up well in the fight with Campeau, but these young fellows have got something that I lack. I was a kid at the game. I've about come to the conclusion that I'm through."
"An' ye'll not fight any more? Oh, that would be grand!"
"Would you care, Sheila?"
"Of course, I'd care. Why, I think it would be wonderful if you could get into business yourself or with yer brother, Tim, just like ye talked that day."
"You remember then our ride? I wondered if you did. I was very happy that day."
"It was beautiful, the sunset an' all," mused Sheila.
"I'd like to take you again, some time. And, how about the West End Club's big shindig, the dance, I mean. Will you go with me?" he asked, his eyes bright with anticipation. "We'll have a great time."
"I'm sorry but I've already promised Emmett."
"Oh," and the lilt in Rory's voice failed.
"You see, he asked me some time ago."
"But I couldn't. I was away."
"An' I told him yes. Will you be coming?"
"Oh, I always take Mother and Dad. They know all the old timers, the real old timers, you know, and it gives them a chance to meet them again. They wouldn't miss it for anything."
"Then I'll see you."
"And will you dance with me?"
"Of course, I will."
After Sheila had finished they walked slowly homeward and went down as far as the new steamship docks, where they could see the lights on an ocean going vessel that was moored there waiting to sail on the next day. The New Jersey shore was alive with the glimmering lights of automobiles and trolley cars.

"There's some mighty nice flats a bit farther north there," remarked Rory. "I know some friends who live over there. Once I wanted the folks to move over there, but they like the neighborhood they've been living in. The rents are nearly as cheap as here and the streets are clean and there are trees and grass on the lawns in front of the smaller houses. It's nice for young couples just starting out."
"It would be nice for Emmett an' me then, wouldn't it? Emmett's so changed now an' he says he has a fine chance."
"You and Emmett Murtough engaged?"
"Well, we had planned it a long, long time ago, and when he changed for the better, I agreed."
Rory said no more on the way home and his silence embarrassed Sheila into silence also. At the door where they parted Rory said: "Well, I'll see you at the dance."
"Oh, of course. Give my love to yer mother."

Sheila turned up the stairs, but it seemed to her, who listened to her footfalls, that her feet must have turned to lead.

At the West End Club there was much talk and planning of the coming dance. All the active workers of the district had been enlisted to do their share to make it a huge success. Clocker took advantage of the fact that most of his men were there to call them into meeting, and he told them of his plans to transport the entire shipload of contraband on the following Sunday night. Enough trucks would be furnished to do the job, and he appointed Dixon in charge and Devin first lieutenant in the enterprise. It was their business to learn how many vehicles would be required, to obtain the services of drivers and guards and to schedule the routes over which each truck should speed to New York.

"I'll take Murtough with me if it's all right," said Devin. "He appears to be a pretty handy fellow."
"He stood up all right in that trouble we had with Stevens," commented Dixon. "I think he's a good man."
"I'll speak to him then; he ought to be in later."
Murtough did not come in. At that very hour he was crouching in the underbrush outside of Clocker's storage house on Long Island with Schermer and his two companions.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
Feeling at times as a harbor, at others as an attorney, a curious man called VILAK has come to the queer little town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil, to help his cousin, ELISE NUNNALLY, solve a strange mystery.

Elise, a beautiful American girl, has inherited a coffee plantation and other property adjoining Porto Verde. Several mysterious deaths occur, including that of one of her foremen. She herself has been threatened and warned to leave. Vilak, learning that LINCOLN NUNNALLY, a famous American chemist and once a teacher of his, is in South America, sends for him.

Vilak believes that GAYLORD PRINCE, a mysterious and forbidding man, is somehow involved in the deaths. He tries to visit Prince but is ordered to stay away. Elise's two-year-old orphaned nephew is kidnapped and Prince is suspected. Vilak tracks the kidnappers and recovers the child, unharmed, without finding its abductors.

Vilak tells Elise she and the child must leave on the next boat. He decides to close his harbor shop and stick to the character of Attorney Davis. Word is brought to Elise that VILAK, manager of her property in VILLAPA, is ill and must see her. Vilak suspects a trick and he and Nunnally accompany her. They are ambushed en route by a band of soldiers.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY CHAPTER XXI

VILAK heard a rustle in the brush behind which left no doubt that the officer had told the truth. Coolly he flicked open his cigarette case. "A cigarette, amigos?"

The other eyed him warily. "I do not smoke, amigos, when I have work to do."

Vilak lit his own casually. "That is foolish. A cigarette and the work is done. It is an old saying of the philosopher of Almaro which you, a good Portuguese, should know, amigos. May I take to myself the privilege of troubling you to ask why your good soldiers have done us the honor of so escorting us?"

The other growled. "Enough of this rigolade, enough of this folly," he muttered harshly. "You are all my prisoners until I see fit to release you. I will begin by asking you some questions. Take care that you answer them well and truthfully, or it will be the worse for you. What is your name? Your profession?"

"Sherman Davis, attorney."

"Nationality?"

"United States."

The officer laughed raucously. "You are droll, amigos, very, very droll." He leered as he looked at the bony, singular face with its slanted eyes which even Vilak's skillful make-up could not completely efface. "I have seen many who come from this great country in the north, but never any who have looked like you."

He turned and winked at a cadaverous soldier with corporal's stripes, who had been riding beside him. "What do you say, Jesu, of this man who calls himself an American? Is he not rather a perfect Argentine?"

"Assuredly, mon capitain. Were he to walk into Buenos Aires, fifty children would run to call him father."

The officer pointed to the chemist. "And this one. Who is he, he demanded.

The old man looked at his questioner nervously. "Er . . . Nunnally," he stammered. "Lincoln Nunnally. . . Er . . . chemist . . . yes . . . chemist."

"Nationality?"

"Er . . . United States . . . New Jersey."

The officer chuckled. "You hear him, Jesu? You hear him? Is he not indeed more droll than the first? This bald rabbit, this tiny insect who hops in the grass, tells us he comes from the United States where no man is less than six feet in height, where they kill all men who have not this height. Is not this droll one also a perfect Argentine, Jesu?"

"Assuredly, mon capitain. In Buenos Aires, there are a thousand in each street who would call him brother."

The officer grinned at Elise. "And this third one?" he murmured. "This lovely senhorita with the black eyes which flame with anger and the cheeks that glow like the olive when it ripens in the sun. Who is she?"

Elise started to make an indignant reply. Vilak checked her. "Don't lose your temper. It'll make matters worse. We've got no chance here. They'll shoot us down if we give them the slightest excuse."

She obeyed her cousin's injunction and silent, coolly returned the officer's stare. He laughed. "Put down another Argentine, Jesu," he chuckled. "A beautiful one this time. There are not many like her in that misbegotten country. Yes, a perfect Argentine." He stared at the fourth member of the party, the messenger who had brought them from Porto Verde. "This one is nothing but a jackal who comes after the lions for the moldy bones they throw him. Let him go."

The half-breed scampered off

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS GREAT INTEREST BEING SHOWN IN THURSDAY'S BOUT

Bad Feeling Reported Between Cazoneri and Bud Taylor

Chicago, June 20.—A lot of interest has been injected into the world's championship battle between Bud Taylor and Tony Cazoneri, scheduled for this coming Thursday night, June 23, at Wrigley Field. Taylor came out Saturday with a statement to the effect that he expects to knock out Cazoneri inside of five rounds and no sooner had Bud made this crack than the challenger countered verbally by publicly telling his friends to wager on his winning over Taylor by the same route.

Taylor and Cazoneri were friendly enough before their fight meeting at the Coliseum last winter, but since that fight, a lot of bad feeling has cropped out between the two camps. Cazoneri and his trainers felt he should have been awarded the decision over Taylor and so stated in the press.

Taylor couldn't see where they had a leg to stand on in this contention. The champion admitted he was not at his best when he fought Tony in the winter but he was waging an intensive training campaign since then and topped off his preparations for the defense of the title by knocking out Chick Sugars in Los Angeles recently, something that no other fighter has done.

Bud feels that he is right and is supremely confident in his ability to stop the New Yorker.

Promoter Jim Mullen has completed all arrangements at Wrigley Field and the Cubs Park is transferred into the finest boxing arena in the country. The layout at the North Side Park is the best arrangement for watching fights of any outdoor arena and every fan is assured a perfect view of the ring from any spot in the park.

DEMPSEY COMING EAST FOR FIRST COMEBACK TRIAL

Meets Jack Sharkey in July for Chance at Tunney's Crown

Chicago, June 20.—(AP)—With Jack Dempsey speeding east, reports today were revived that the heavy-weight final biceps together Gene Tunney and either Jack Sharkey or Dempsey would be held at Soldiers' Field here.

Sharkey's agreement on terms with Tex Rickard yesterday was accompanied by the rumor that Rickard favored Chicago as the battling ground. But the principal stumbling block, as Rickard found out a year ago, is that he is barred as the actual promoter because Illinois matches must be handled by bonafide residents of Illinois.

New York.—Word of finding human targets for Jack Dempsey's "come back" fight and a place for him to train was underway today with the ex-champion expected tomorrow from the west. Dempsey meets Jack Sharkey, July 21, for the chance to fight Gene Tunney for the heavy-weight championship. Financial negotiations by the principals are being ironed out with indications each will receive 25 percent of the gate.

Browns Swamped Harmon's Bunch

The Dixon Browns swamped the Harmon baseball team at Brown's Field yesterday afternoon by a score of 14 to 4. George Lightner did the twirling for the shoe makers up until the final inning when a new recruit was given a chance to demonstrate his ability. The Browns at that time led by a 14 to 1 count, but his were bunched off the new twirler and Harmon sent three more over the rubber for counts before the side was retired.

Ohio Team Suffers First Loss of Year

The fast Ohio baseball team suffered its first defeat of the season Sunday afternoon when they went to Ladd and lost by a score of 17 to 2. Ohio had an off day, with nine errors to their credit, while Ladd played an airtight game and won with ease. "Smoky Joe" Miller pitched good ball but the support was ragged and the contest turned out to be a field day of fumbles and errors.

Seen From Press Boxes in Major League Ball Parks

BY THE AP
After slugging the ball harder, the Chicago Cubs were pressing forward more confidently today in their duel with Pittsburgh for National League supremacy. In winning 14-7 yesterday, the Cubs ousted the feared Pirates by 14-9, slugging a home run and Charley Root had the better of the pitching argument with Hill, Yac-and Cvenegros. The Cubs now are only a fraction more than one game behind the Pirates.

The White Sox pitching ace Ted Lyons was ineffective against the Indians, who beat them 3-2. It was Lyons' first defeat in nine starts and his club's ninth in twelve games. The only other American League game the Detroit Tigers won 1-1 over Washington.

At last the New York Giants found themselves with good pitching and beat the Cardinals 4-3.

Jack Scott of the Phillies outshone all other hurlers of the day at least in ambition. After pitching a 3-1 victory over the Reds in the first game of the doubleheader, he hurled the second losing 3-0.

Earl Smith's flinty setto with Davy Bancroft, manager of Boston at Pittsburgh Saturday, has brought his indefinite suspension from the catching staff of the league Pirates. President Heydler of the National League announcing the suspension yesterday said he would get the Boston side of the story before announcing his final action.

The hopes of the Cubs for a second victory today probably will be entrusted to Harold Carlson, their new pitcher purchased from the Phillies. Carlson has won both his starts with the Cubs.

It is the last game at home for the Cubs before a long road trip starting at St. Louis tomorrow.

SPORT BRIEFS

BY THE AP
Chicago.—Fans who have made Tony Cazoneri of New York a 7-5 favorite over Bud Taylor of Terre Haute in their ten round battle for the bantamweight crown next Thursday night, evidently have figured the contest to be a battle of left hooks.

Wimbledon, England.—William T. Tilden, American star, opened his bid for the Wimbledon lawn tennis singles championships today by defeating the first round to win from G. A. Pratt of England in straight sets.

Chicago.—Hydromel, winner of Saturday's American Derby in record breaking time, together with Dolan and Buddy Bauer, will be sent to Latonia to run in the derby there Saturday. Whiskery, Kentucky derby winner who ran last will not be sent to Latonia, his trainer deciding that he needs a rest.

Whiskery, Hydromel Out of Latonia Race

Chicago, June 20.—(AP)—Neither Hydromel winner of Saturday's American Derby in record time, nor Whiskery which won the Kentucky Derby, will run in the Latonia Derby next Saturday. Whiskery's poor showing in the American decided Trainer Hopkins not to send his horse to Latonia.

Hydromel, Dolan and Buddy Bauer were to be shipped to Latonia today. Hydromel, however, was not nominated for the Latonia.

Nearly every American city now has a number of foreign-born residents. The problem of making these residents into good Americans and making them realize the benefits and importance of citizenship is a task which too many cities neglect.

Canton, O., has solved this problem in an admirable manner.

Four times a year, when classes take out their final citizenship papers in the county courts, Canton arranges elaborate programs in which the new citizens play a prominent part. Without these programs the granting of citizenship would be a dull affair.

Last April there were 1500 attending this affair. They staged a Pageant of Nations, including tableaux showing colonial history, signing of the Declaration of Independence and early days in Canton. Then there were native folk dances, staged by the foreign-born. Emphasis was placed on American manners and language. The affair closed with songs, a talk and the presentation of certificates.

Night schools in Canton have 2000 enrolled and the important department is the Americanization division. Classes are conducted in various sections of the city. For the women, burdened with home work and with children, the instructors conduct classes in the homes. The fee to become a member of any of the classes is but two dollars for a full term of

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"IS THE UNIVERSE, INCLUDING MAN, EVOLVED BY ATOMIC FORCE?" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, June 19.

The Golden Text was from Isaiah 45:22, "Look unto me, and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth: for I am God, and there is none else."

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "And the seventh angel sounded; and there were great voices in heaven, saying, The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever. And the four and twenty elders, which sat before God on their seats, fell upon their faces, and worshipped God, saying, We give thee thanks, O Lord God Almighty, come, because thou hast taken to thee thy great power, and hast reigned" (Rev. 11:15-17).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Either there is no omnipotence, or omnipotence is the only power. God is the infinite, and infinitely never began, will never end, and includes nothing unlike God" (p. 240).

An Ex-Buck PRIVATE goes back to FRANCE

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is chapter 65 of the series of articles written by a doughboy who is revisiting France as a correspondent for The Telegraph.

CHAPTER LXV

"From Echifontaine to Exermont, thence north to Arietal Farm and Sommerance."

The guide books one buys in France do not contain the above line of direction. But if any American Legionnaire desires to visit the most bitterly-contested area of the Meuse-Argonne battle-field, and perhaps the scene of the fiercest fighting of the war for Americans with the possible exception of Berzy-le-Sec and the Missy Ravine, one should walk over those acres, and walk slowly, too.

Defended by eight German divisions, the hills and the Exermont ravine saw the collapse of three American divisions—one of the few defeats of America's greatest battle. Then three fresh divisions came in (one of which was later cited in general orders for gallantry, conquered the terrain and went on to Romagne).

To pass through the region today one must rely on memories or a vivid imagination to visualize that conflict. Most of the traces of the battle have vanished. Sommerance has been rebuilt; Echifontaine is a dot of a few houses along the road.

The marks of machine gun bullets are on the walls of the church at Exermont and a German sign "Schlussel" remains on one of the pillars inside to designate the nationality of the former occupants who used the church for a stable. Arietal Farm is under cultivation. But there are depressions in the rolling acres, ominous reminders of the shell holes of the past.

To go through the stillness in the evening of a warm day, it is hard to imagine that the sweet air was once drenched with gas. It is difficult to conjure up the rat-a-tat of machine-guns that killed and killed. Long shadows fall across the narrow unfenced roads that merge into the fields. The peasants plod homeward. A boy and his dog follow a flock of sheep. And on the way down to Thomaston, 228 miles away. Some time later she returned alone, riding in the caboose in grand style.

LEADS HER KITTEN ASTRAY

Houghton, Mich.—[The pet cat of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic roundhouse disappeared recently. Investigation showed that she had taken her kitten for a ride on the rods to Thomaston, 228 miles away. Some time later she returned alone, riding in the caboose in grand style.

HORSESHOERS SCARCE

Springfield, Ill.—There aren't many horseshoers any more. Only 65 of them applied for licenses in Illinois last year, so the state senate has passed a bill which would permit them to operate without licensing.
